199,000 people left residential aged care, home care or transition care in 2017–18.

On average, people stay 2.5 years in permanent residential care.

Over half of people who left home care moved into residential care.

People use home care for an average of 2 years, six months less than permanent residential care.

Women stay in permanent residential care, 10 months longer than men.

83% of people leave permanent residential care due to death.

Source: GEN-agedcaredata.gov.au